Brentwood Students Building a Better World One Student at a Time

Brentwood School District Hosts 2018 Back to School Convocation

Brentwood, NY (September, 2018) —The Brentwood Union Free School District recently hosted a back to school convocation to ease the transition into the new school year for newly hired employees. After spending the summer months diligently preparing for the upcoming year, district administrators and Board of Education members spoke to faculty members in the Brentwood High School gymnasium to address the expectations and vision for the next ten months.

“The Brentwood community is expanding exponentially while the surrounding communities are shrinking. We continue to grow year in and year out because of the individuals sitting before me right now,” said Superintendent of Schools Richard Loeschner. “Our students continue to inspire us to be great teachers and leaders. The dedication and passion our district’s educators possess are unparalleled.”

Mr. Loeschner introduced Rohan Murphy, a motivational speaker and Long Island native, who spoke to the educators, coaches, and staff members about the influence they have on children both inside and outside the classroom. Following the speech, everyone returned to their designated buildings to add last minute touches to classrooms in preparation for the new year.

Each year Brentwood Schools establish a district-wide motto, this year’s being “Brentwood Schools Building a Better World One Student at a Time.” The motto emanates from the power Brentwood faculty and staff have to help mold the lives of their students for the better. The diverse team of instructors in the district contributes to student’s social and educational development.

“Starting now, we will begin building a better world one Brentwood student at a time. I am going to thank you in advance for an outstanding 2018-2019 school year,” concluded Superintendent Loeschner.
